They were "Novelle Bourbon" or New Bourbon and New Tennessee.

New Bourbon was situated about two and one-half miles from the old village of Ste. Genevieve. Its site was on a hill which overlooked a strip of plain about one league in width, lying between it and the river. The settlement here was made in 1793 by order of Baron Carondelet. Carondelet was at this time lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana with headquarters at St. Louis. He founded this colony and made it a separate administrative division in order to give a place to Pierre De Haut De Lassus De Luziere who was made the commandant of New Bourbon. It was the intention to bring to this new settlement the colony of French nobles who had emigrated from France during the Revolution and had formed a settlement in Ohio called Gallipolis. The scheme for bringing these French nobles was never carried into effect fully, but some of them came and made their home here near Ste. Genevieve. The authority of the commandant at this place extended west to Mine La Motte. At New Bourbon there was a small mill erected in 1793 on the creek now called Dodge's creek. The mill was built by Francois Valle and afterward sold to Israel Dodge. It was the first mill west of the Mississippi river.

The settlement called New Tennessee was made in what is now Saline township. The first settlers here were Peter Bloom and Thomas Madden. Both of them had formerly lived at Ste. Genevieve. Others who lived in the vicinity were Nicholas Counts, Joseph Hughes, Jesse Bryant, William Painter, John and Edward Walsh, Elder Wingate Jackson, who was a Baptist preacher, and John McFarland, who was a minister of the Methodist church. This settlement was made about the year 1800.

The following table gives the larger number of the settlements in the Ste. Genevieve district made before the transfer to the United States in 1804. The dates are as accurate as can now be given: *

William' Reed was the first settler in the Bellevue Valley in Iron county. He came in 1798, having received permission of De Luziere the Spanish official in charge at New Bourbon. Solomon George came about the same time and made his home on the Little St. Francois. Elisha Baker came to the same settlement from the Bois Brule Bottom in 1798, being accompanied by his son Elijah. Joseph Reed, a nephew of William, was another of the early settlers. Near the vicin-

William Mathews was chosen "a singing clerk." On October 11, 1806, the congregation resolved to erect a house of worship, which resolution was put into effect as soon as possible. A small log structure was completed on the farm of Thomas Bull, but it proved to be too small, and in 1812 was replaced by a hewn-log building, which is still standing. The membership was now 80, and one year later it had increased to 186. In June, 1814, 45 members were dismissed to organize a church in what is now St. Francois County, but even after this dismissal there remained 173 members. In 1809 Bethel Church was received into Red River Association, which met at old Red River Church, near Clarksville, Tenn. It remained a member of this association until 1816, when it was decided to form a new association of the churches in Missouri.

On the second Sabbath in June, 1816, a convention for the organization of Bethel Association met at Bethel Church, and was opened by prayer by Thomas Donohue. A sermon was delivered by Elder James Edwards, after which an organization was effected. The delegates present were as follows: Bethel Church—Thomas Bull, John Sheppard, Elder Benjamin Thompson and Robert English; Tywappity Church—Henry Cockerham, J. W. Baldwin and William Ross; Saline Church—Elder Thomas Donohue and John Duvall; St. Francois Church—William Street and Jonathan Hubble; Turkey Creek Church—William Johnson, Daniel Johnson, E. Revell and S. Baker. Elders Henry Cockerham, John Farrar, Thomas Donohue and James P. Edwards were appointed to preach and constitute churches. The convention adjourned to meet the last Saturday in September at the same place to complete the organization of the association. At this meeting there were present delegates from the following churches, representing an aggregate membership of 230: Bethel, Tywappity, Providence, Barren, Bellevue, St. Francois and Dry Creek.

Providence Church was constituted in August, 1814, by Elders Wilson, Thompson, John Farrar and James E. Welch, in a small log house on the St. Francois River, in Madison County, not very far from Fredericktown. The Barren Church was organized on the first Saturday in July, 1816, and was administered to by Thomas Donohue until his death. It soon after became extinct. Among its members were Obadiah Scott, Elisha Belcher and Mr. Duvall. St. Francois Church was constituted in 1814, but it had previously existed as the "St. Francois arm of the Bethel Church." It held its meetings in what is now Wayne County, and its pastor was William Street. Tywappity Church was the successor of the first church organized, which was re-established in 1809.

Bethel Church was at this time in a highly prosperous condition. In March, 1818, Rev. Thomas P. Greene, the father of Samuel M. Greene, of Cape Girardeau, was called to the pastorate, and administered to the church until 1826, when he was succeeded by Elder Benjamin Thompson.

The following facts, taken from the records of this church, furnish a clue to the customs and usages of the Baptist societies at that time: In 1808 Thomas Wright and two other members of his family were excluded from the church for holding Armenian views, and in 1811 John Reynolds was excluded for joining the Masonic Lodge. At a meeting in 1818 it was resolved that Hannah Edwards be allowed to wear gold earrings for the benefit of her health. The following is an entry on the minutes of March 11, 1820: "Church in conference. Query: If a member is constrained to shout shall the church bear with it. Answer. Yes."

Of the early ministers of Bethel Association may be mentioned Henry Cockerham, John Farrar, William Street, Wilson Thompson, James P. Edwards, Wingate Jackson and Thomas P. Greene. Cockerham was one of the first settlers in Scott County, and was a man of considerable wealth. John Farrar was ordained on June 18, 1814, and resided in Madison County until 1825, when he removed to Washington County, where he died in 1829. William Street was an early settler in Wayne County, and was a large land and slave owner. He was very highly esteemed, both as a citizen and as a minister. He died about 1843. Wilson Thompson was born in Kentucky in 1788, and in 1811 he came to Cape Girardeau District, where he engaged in teaching school and preaching. His uncle, Benjamin Thompson, was converted by him, and became a preacher of some note. During a revival season extending over some eighteen months in 1812-13 he is said to have baptized between 400 and 500 persons. A short time after he removed to Ohio. James P. Edwards came to Cape Girardeau from Kentucky in 1811. He had studied law, but on April 10, 1812, he was ordained to the ministry, and in 1818 removed to Illinois. Wingate Jackson was born in Virginia in 1776, and removed to Kentucky with his parents at about the time of the transfer of Louisiana to the United States, and located in New Tennessee, where he died in 1835. Thomas P. Greene was a native of North Carolina. In 1807, at the age of seventeen, he removed to Tennessee, and ten years later located in Cape Girardeau County, where he remained until 1831, when he went to St. Louis and became pastor of the Second Baptist Church. He died July 11, 1843.

In 1820 Elder Wingate Jackson established a church in New Tennessee, in Ste. Genevieve County. It was named Hephzibah Church, and embraced in its membership Elder Wingate Jackson, Obadiah Scott, Noah Hunt and Joel and Enoch Hamers. In 1822 Bethel Association appointed three elders to travel and establish churches in Arkansas. They constituted two churches—Union and Little Flock—both of which were received into membership. In 1825 Pendleton Church was constituted in a settlement six miles west of Farmington. James Halbert was its pastor until 1833, when he was succeeded by William Polk, who ministered to the congregation for twenty years or more. In the summer of 1841 New Hope Church was organized at the house of L. Parks, five miles east of Farmington, with fifteen members. In 1859 there were three new churches, Mount Zion, White Oak Grove and Locust Grove, admitted to membership in Bethel Association, which then embraced a membership of 834. But during the same year eight churches were dismissed to form the Central Missouri Association.

In 1870 there was only ten churches and 311 members. Two years later, however, there were reported 627 members.

In 1887 the following report of membership was made by the churches of Bethel Association: New Hope, 48; Pendleton, 65; Bethany, 65; Colony, 66; Texas, 54; Bethel, 75; Pleasant Union, 34; New Tennessee, 66; Little Vine, 81; Liberty, 56; Saline, 49; Pleasant Valley, 55; Pleasant Hill, 82; Rock Creek, 79; Big Creek, 111; Oak Grove, 64; Spring Valley, 41; and Brush Creek, 23; a total of 1,114. The most of these churches are in St. Francois and Ste. Genevieve Counties, but there are one or two in Madison and Iron Counties. The association belongs to the United Baptists, is mildly anti-mission, and practices feet-washing as an ordinance.

In 1824 nine churches were dismissed from Bethel Association, to form Cape Girardeau Association, and on June 12 of that year a convention met at Hebron Church to effect an organization. The ministers present were Benjamin Thompson, James Williams, Ed. Kerr, J. P. Edwards, Jeremiah Brown, David Orr, Thomas P. Greene, James Halbert, John M. Peck and Wingate Jackson, the last three of whom were from Bethel and Missouri Associations. The churches represented were Bethel, Dry Creek, Tywappity, Apple Creek, Ebenezer, Big Prairie, Hebron, Jackson and two churches in Illinois. Hebron Church was organized in the neighborhood of where the "poor farm" in Cape Girardeau County now is, on May 11, 1822, with the following members: Polly Greene, Abraham Randol, Rebecca and Mary Randol, Simon and Rebecca Poe, James and Francis Holcomb, James and Nancy Randol, Susannah and Matilda Williams, and Benjamin and Sarah Hitt. Jackson Church was constituted in 1824, with only seven members. They were Isaac Sheppard, William Surrell, John Juden Sr., John Juden, Jr., James Massey, John Daugherty and Francis Thomas. Apple Creek Church was at first known as an arm of Bethel Church, and was given a separate organization about 1820. Ebenezer Church was organized in the Big Bend on June 9, 1821, with five members dismissed from Bethel Church.

Cape Girardeau Association, when organized, embraced the counties of Cape Girardeau, Scott, Mississippi and Perry, and was in a prosperous condition until about 1837. During that time new churches were received as follows: Pleasant Hill, Scott County, in 1828; Mount Moriah, in Mathews' Prairie, in 1830; Union, in 1832; Cypress, in Scott County, in 1827; Harmony, in Mississippi County, in 1830; Mount Zion, in 1830, and Cape Girardeau in 1834. The last named church was organized by Thomas P. Greene on August 13, 1834, with nine members.

Between 1835 and 1840 the question of missions began to

Died: — Mrs. Ural Jackson, at her residence, on the 20th inst. Her exact age we are unable to learn, but she was well up in the eighties, and a well respected old lady. Her husband died about six years ago, and was perhaps one of the first settlers in this part of the county, where they both resided until death. She leaves a host of friends to mourn her departure. May she rest in peace.
