Local Musicians Play ‘Tracks in the Stacks’ at MCPL

New Program Series Brings Free Live Musical Performances to Metro Libraries

Greater Kansas City, MO – Mid-Continent Public Library recently launched a new program series called “Tracks in the Stacks,” featuring live musical performances by local musicians at Library branches across the metro. The pop-up series will shine a light on the talented, homegrown artists in our community and enrich the patron experience as a dynamic soundtrack plays in the background of their visit.

“Tracks in the Stacks is a wonderful opportunity for our community members to enjoy free live music and also support local artists here in the metro,” said Katie McDonald, MCPL Associate Director for Reader Engagement.

Tracks in the Stacks Performance Schedule:

- Danielle Ate the Sandwich, singer-songwriter and Ukelele player—Excelsior Springs Branch on May 14 at 7:00 p.m.
- Kirstie Lynn, singer-songwriter—Buckner Branch on June 2 at 7:00 p.m.
- Hudspeth and Taylor, Blues music duo—Raytown Branch on June 9 at 7:00 p.m.
- The Swallowtails, singer-songwriter duo—Smithville Branch on June 25 at 7:00 p.m.

For more information, including the upcoming lineup of performances, visit mymcpl.org/TracksInTheStacks. No registration is required.
