The Ladies Literary Club met Monday Oct. 28 at the home of Mrs. J. ? Young for a Halloween frolic. Guests were met at the door and after wraps were removed escorted to the darkened dining room by ghosts. After we had arrived dim lights were turned on and each guest was offered a fortune. Fortunes were attached to the straws of a whisk broom and were very fitting and well suited to the ones whom they were meant for. Then a ghost appeared with a small punch board and each one was required to get up and do the “stunt” as outlined on a piece of paper. Mrs. Farthing was awarded the prize. The “peanut pass” was the cause of much laughter and fun. The Shade of Houdini then appeared and read the thoughts of all present. Then another ghost, the spirit of a radio announcer, wailed of his trials and tribulations. The lights were turned on and the ghosts disappeared. The decorations were beautiful and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Next meeting at the home of Mrs. J. F. Adams. Members present – Massey, Thompson, Wernet, Breazeale, Alderman, Butler, Ellis, Farthing, Jones, Moore, Pile, Reid, Robertson, Shollenberger, Adams, Garrison, Young, Wilson.

The Ladies Literary Club held a Halloween Social at the home of Mrs. Ella Roper on Oct 27. The entertainment committee comprised of Mesdames Adams, Wilson and Stine had previously sent invitations to the members requesting them to come as the shades of certain characters in history. On arriving the guests were met by a spook who led them into a room and instructed them to sign their names in a register. This was impossible as there was no ink. They were then led into another room where the other spooks and shades were. When all had assembled they were asked two questions about shades and if they failed to answer they were given the acid test. Each shade was led separately into the torture room for the test which consisted of drinking of sulfuric acid, having their neck cut with a sharp knife and other things too horrible to mention. The next thing was "Raising the Shades". Each shade asked two questions about him or herself and Mrs. Ellis received the prize for the most correct answers. T. Roosevelt -(Mrs. Pile) & Jennie Lind.- (Mrs. Farthing) told something of their lives. A. Lincoln (Mrs. Massey) gave his Gettysburg Address. LITERARY CLUB HOSTS TO MODERN SEEKERS

Dame Fashion stepped from out the panel of the past at the old fashioned party given at the home of Mrs. J. C. Young by the ladies of the Literary club Monday afternoon when the club was host to the members of the Modern Seekers. Those antique fashions of from fifty years ago on down thru to the ultra modern styles were in gay parade as they appeared on the members of the two clubs. The little postage-stamp bonnet, the hoop skirts with their ankle length pantalets beneath, the polonaise and bustles, broad extended ruffles, all made their appearance. In fact almost every style which has appeared during the past fifty years was revived by some one of the forty ladies present. The Young home was beautifully decorated for the affair, St. Patrick designs and colors being used in artistic profusion, with jonquils as the predominating flower. After the arrival of all the guests and club members and the hilarity created by the antique costumes had somewhat subsided, the gathering was called to order and after an invocation by Mrs. R. R. Farthing, a two course luncheon was served. After luncheon the following program was given: Roll call, "My Earliest Recollection," or a story told by Grandmother. Song, "When You and I were Young, Maggie" by the group. Reading by Mrs. Oliver Wilson. Contest "Historical Nonsense," won by Mrs. T. B. Chaffin and Mrs. Fray Johnson. Six groups were then formed and each group presented a pantomime. Such scenes as "The Boston Tea Party," "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" "Barbara Fritchie", etc., were enacted. Prizes for the most charming costumes worn by some member of the two clubs went to Mrs. J. C. Young of the Literary Club and Mrs. J. L. Woody of the Modern Seekers. The meeting closed by singing "Auld Lang Syne". Those present were Mesdames J. C. Young, J. C. Rogers, John M. Pile, J. W. Alderman, Omer Brown, A. H. Giehl, R. R. Farthing, J. N. Young, Ward Shelton, T. R. Moore, Stanley Clayman, L. K. Ellis, T. B. Chaffin, Francis Wernet, Ed Thompson, Oliver Wilson, Lyman Kerr, R. R. Hartley, Fray Johnson, Reg Mapes, Mahlon Stine, R. r. Modern Seekers Entertain Ladies Literary Club

The Modern Seekers club entertained the ladies of the Literary club with a lovely 1 o'clock luncheon in the home of Mrs. Stanley Clayman on Friday, April 1st. As the guests arrived they were greeted by Mrs. Francis Wernet, Mrs. Reg Mapes, Mrs. Fray Johnson and Mrs. Bert Whittington. The ushers were Mrs. Rex Harris, Mrs. M. D. Stine and Mrs. Jean Woody. The date being April 1st, the party took on the air of a "Fools" party, so after the guests removed their wraps they were given soda crackers to eat while finding their places at the eleven quartet tables and they were not allowed to speak until they had each eaten a cracker. After everyone was seated, Mrs. Francis Wernet, president of the Modern Seekers, gave an address of welcome and then turned the affair over to the program committee, consisting of Mrs. Fray Johnson, Mrs. D. C. Leonard and Mrs. Mahlon Stine, who had planned a very clever "April Fool's Party". During the luncheon hour roll call was answered with "The Most Foolish Thing I Ever Did." The serving committee consisted of Mrs. John Campbell, Mrs. Irvan Gardner, Mrs. James Wallace, and Mrs. Emmett Kerr, all wearing white dresses. After lunch each guest was presented with white and pink rosebuds. Mrs. J. C. Young won the April Fool prize for telling the most foolish thing she ever did. Seven "old maids" and seven "old bachelors" then put on some stunts which brought forth screams and laughter. The "Old Maids" were Ethel Stine, Golda Harris, Jessie Chaffin, Mabel Mapes, Ruth Kerr, Reba Campbell and Katy Lee Whittington. The "Old Bachelors" were Loretta Leonard, Lula Wernet, Lucille Brown, Edna Green, Lola Wallace,

Lillian Mowry and Belle Canard. A match box race (a small matchbox with slip on cover being attached to one nose and placed onto another without being dropped) was won by Mrs. Omer Brown. A flower contest was won by Mrs. J. C. Rogers and a tree contest by Mrs. W. L. Hixson. The guests from the Literary Club were Mesdames T. R. Moore, W. L. Hixson, Gordon Massey, Ross Robertson, John M. Pile, Geo. T. Breazeale, A. H. Giehl, Chas. Shollenberger, R. R. Farthing, Chas. Cox, R. R. Tunnell, Oliver Wilson, Clell Adams, L. K. Ellis, Ed. The honorary members of the Ladies' Literary Club were delightfully entertained at the regular meeting of the club held Monday at the home of Mrs. Wm. Ed Thompson. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. Gordon Massey, Mrs. R. R. Farthing and Mrs. John M. Pile. The first number on the program was a vocal solo by Mrs. A. C. Adams, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Howe Steele. A couple of guessing games then occupied the time and afforded much amusement. A quartet, composed of Mesdames J. C. Young, R. R. Farthing, A. C. Adams and Mrs. Chloe Butler then sang "Old Black Joe" characterizing the race with which this song is connected. Parts of the song were dramatized in a very clever manner and caused much amusement for the guests. Two piano numbers were then rendered by Miss Mary Elizabeth Shollenberger, followed by two readings by Mrs. Earl Harris. The hostess served lovely refreshments to Mesdames R. Neil Gray, J. A. Robertson, Howe Steele, and Mrs. Mary Bingham, all of Springfield; Earl Harris, A. C. Adams, Geo T. Breazeale, C. P. Cox, L.K. Ellis, R. R. Farthing, W. L. Hixson, Gordon Massey, T. R. Moore, John M. Literary Honors Modern Seekers' Club

The ladies of the Literary Club were hostesses Monday afternoon with a tea at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Young, honoring the members of the Modern Seekers' Club. The rooms of the home were beautifully decorated with a profusion of spring flowers, arranged in a clever and artistic manner. The reception room was especially adorned with a massive bouquet, the gift from the Modern Seekers to the Literary Club, the Literary Club colors of purple and gold being carried out in the gorgeous assembly of beautiful blossoms. The receiving line consisted of Mesdames Oliver Wilson, Gordon Massey, B. O. Womble, Ross Robertson and Wm. Ed Thompson, officers of the club. At the appointed hour the curtains to the serving room were drawn aside to reveal the continuation of spring flower revelry, with the Modern Seekers' colors of pink and white predominating in the roses and lilies of the valley which formed a massive centerpiece, surrounded by pink and white tapers on the serving table. Mrs. Chloe Butler presided at the pouring and Mrs. L. K. Ellis served. The sociability of the occasion was carried out most pleasingly as each member of the entertaining club escorted an invited guest to the serving room. In the refreshments the color of pink and white continued in a most clever manner. This committee consisted of Mesdames Earle Harris, L. K. Ellis and E. E. Love.
