NATHANIEL PATTEN, PIONEER EDITOR.

It is recorded of American newspaper editors that in the Westward Movement they were always in the vanguard, setting up their presses and issuing their sheets before the forests had been cleared or the sod turned. Of such editors were John Bradford of the Kentucke Gazette, the first paper issued in Kentucky; William Maxwell of the Centinel of the Northwestern Territory, the first paper north of the Ohio; and Joseph Charless of the Missouri Gazette (the present St. Louis Republic), the first west of the Mississippi river. And of such also was Nathaniel Patten of the Missouri Intelligencer, first editor of a newspaper west of St. Louis or north of the Missouri river, Missouri's best example of the pioneer editor.

Nathaniel Patten was born at Roxbury, Massachusetts, in 1793. (1) His family had been prominent in New England for several generations. His father, also named Nathaniel, had received a good education, and spent much time in cultivating the minds and morals of his five children, (2) of whom Nathaniel, Jr., was eldest. In 1808 the family moved west,

(1) The date of his baptism was September 9, 1793, as stated in a letter from Thomas W. Baldwin, compiler of the Patten genealogy, (Boston, 1908.) A number of interesting details of the Patten family have kindly been furnished by Mr. Baldwin.

(2) Missouri Intelligencer, Oct. 9, 1821. Obituary of Mary B. Patten.
